Success Story:

From growing up and playing baseball next to the Albuquerque General Mills plant and smelling the numerous cereals being made, to working and selling some of the world's most recognizable brands to the world's largest retailer; it has been and continues to be an amazing experience. General Mills has long invested in Albuquerque's community and wants to continue that partnership by recruiting students that are ambitious and continually push themselves to learn and better themselves. The career service center was an extremely valuable resource that I leveraged multiple times throughout my tenure at UNM, and in connecting with potential future employers. Without their help, navigating the job hunt/interview process would have proven to be much more difficult.
