WHAT CAN I DO WITH A MAJOR IN ...MEDIA ARTS

OCCUPATIONAL OVERVIEW:
Media arts involves the study and practice of film and video as art. "In the hope of understanding and enhancing the immense role of film and video in the modern world, the program offers the student a broad foundation in the purposes of art and culture...The Bachelor of Arts degree in Media Arts provides a liberal arts background which will enable the student to pursue further education and professional training" (from UNM’s Department of Media Arts website). The focus of the program is both international and interdisciplinary.

Another related degree program at UNM is the Interdisciplinary Film & Digital Media (IFDM) program. For information, consult their website.

EMPLOYMENT REQUIREMENTS:
A variety of career paths exist for bachelor’s degree-holding candidates. With this level of education, students might pursue work in the communication industry that intersects with film, including advertising, public relations, educational media, or freelance film work. Other students may choose to pursue an advanced degree in film or related disciplines, including film studies, American studies, library studies, and broadcasting/public communications. There also exists hundreds of options in between! Regardless of career goals, media arts students develop a wide range of skills that can be applied in a number of different industries and employment settings.

GENERAL STRATEGIES:
• Gain related experience in your area of interest through internships, research, part-time jobs, volunteer positions, or campus/community leadership positions.
• Supplement coursework to form a specialty that reflects your interest area (e.g., taking extra business courses if you see yourself entering the business world).
• If you are interested in graduate school, investigate requirements of different types of programs (e.g., film studies programs will have a different focus on prerequisites than business school).
• Market upon the “transferable skills” your degree taught you: the ability to present specific viewpoints; synthesize information; evaluate and present ideas; compare and contrast evidence; work with tight deadlines; rewrite and edit with others; interpret information; gather information and data; create compelling messages; and many more!
